Karla's cousin by marriage, Don Roeder, passed away the same day. His wife passed away a few months earlier. The two families lived thirty miles apart.

~~~ Questions for Reflection ~~~

1. How should the reality that God will dwell with us forever change the way we live our lives today?
2. How do you currently experience God's presence in your life, and how does that compare to the promise of His full presence in eternity?
3. How can we, as Christians, offer hope to those around us by pointing them to the promise of the end of suffering in the new creation?
4. How should the seriousness of the "second death" affect the way we witness to those who are far from God?

Would like-minded Christians have no disagreements? (Phil.2:2-5)

No. Christians can have differing opinions and disagree with each other about some things. To be like-minded need not suggest a lock-step, cloned behavior. This is instead a call to have attitudes like Christ - - loving and accepting one another, even when we're different. In fact, God delights in our diversity; he made every single person unique. But we should all be like-minded in our obedience to Christ and in our care for others.
