Cell Block Letters: Paul's Prison Epistles

From the depths of imprisonment, words of encouragement and instruction from the Apostle Paul were sent in a series of letters to communities throughout the Roman Empire. The "Prison Epistles" generally refers to four specific letters written by Paul while he was under arrest in Rome. Each letter is addressed to a specific church or, in the case of Philemon, an individual. While the letters addressed specific needs of first-century Christians and the church, the message of the Epistles is still influential and instructional to Christians living today.

Our study, 'Cell Block Letters: Paul's Prison Epistles' will focus on the letters written to the Ephesians, Philippians, Colossians, and Philemon. They were written during Paul's imprisonment and yet deal with some of the most liberating concepts imaginable. Paul may have been fettered and shackled to a series of Roman guards, but the Word he preached remained unfettered and free. Time spent with these letters will be richly rewarded and equip us for life in multiple dimensions; spiritual, relational, personal, and corporate.
