Take home one thing God taught you today.

Music Notes by Charles F. von Gunten: The choir anthem, A Prayer Before Singing, features text adapted from John Donne's Hymn to God, My God, in My Sickness. Known for its hushed, mysterious, and molto rubato style, this is popular among college and community chamber choirs. The tune for the opening hymn, For All the Saints, was written by Ralph Vaughn Williams, and has been called the best hymn written in the 20th century; it has a splendid melody and has broad sweep, flow and contrast. The postlude, March of the Priests, was written by Felix Mendelssohn as an orchestral piece for the incidental music for a religious drama in 1845. It was widely transcribed and adapted, such as the version today, and became very popular for graduation ceremonies.
