Why You Are Important to Our Congregation

A Tribute in Honor of Your 74th Birthday

Dear Senior Pastor Charles B. Jackson, Sr.,

On the occasion of your 74th birthday, we celebrate not only another year of life but also the extraordinary legacy of faith, leadership, and service you have shared with the Brookland Baptist Church family and the countless lives you have touched throughout your ministry.

You are important to your congregation because you have faithfully served as a shepherd, teacher, mentor, and servant leader. Through your unwavering commitment to God's calling, you have helped guide us through seasons of joy and challenge, always pointing us toward faith, hope, and the promises of God.

For many of us, your sermons have provided encouragement when we needed strength, wisdom when we faced uncertainty, and inspiration when we sought direction. Your words have challenged us to grow spiritually, serve faithfully, and live purposefully.

You are important because you have led with vision and compassion. Under your leadership, Brookland Baptist Church has become more than a place of worship—it has become a beacon of hope, a center for community, and a home where people from all walks of life are welcomed, nurtured, and empowered.

Your life has demonstrated what it means to serve God with humility, excellence, and integrity. The example you have set has inspired generations to pursue education, strengthen families, engage in service, and deepen their relationship with Christ.

As we honor your 74th birthday, we celebrate the countless lives transformed through your ministry, the families strengthened by your leadership, and the enduring impact of your dedication to God's work. We are grateful for your wisdom, your sacrifice, your vision, and your love for God's people.

Today, we give thanks for you. We thank God for the years He has blessed you with, the ministry He has entrusted to you, and the legacy you continue to build. Your congregation is stronger because of your leadership, richer because of your example, and more faithful because of your influence.

May God continue to bless you with good health, renewed strength, abundant joy, and His continued favor. As you celebrate 74 years of life, know that you are deeply loved, greatly appreciated, and profoundly important to your Brookland Baptist Church family.

Happy 74th Birthday, Pastor Jackson.

With love, gratitude, and heartfelt appreciation,

Your Brookland Baptist Church Family

National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month

Each year in July, we celebrate National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month to bring awareness to the unique struggles that affect Black, Indigenous, and People of Color (BIPOC) individuals nationwide. Mental health illnesses affect the emotional, psychological, and social well-being of children and adults regardless of their culture, race, ethnicity, gender, and sexual orientation.

National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month hopes to bring awareness to educate individuals about mental health issues and reduce prejudice, stigma, and unfair inequities. Some of the critical issues that affect multicultural communities and the barriers they face impact their mental health and well-being.

These critical issues and barriers must be taken into consideration and integrated into treatment plans to help overcome long-term mental health issues for the BIPOC community. As such, this article aims to educate individuals about how National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month started, why it is important, and how we can help spread awareness.

How National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month Started

In June 2008, Congress recognized the month of July as the Bebe Moore Campbell National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month. Bebe Moore Campbell was an American author, journalist, teacher, and mental health advocate. She was the co-founder of the National Alliance on Mental Health (NAMI) in Urban Los Angeles. In 2005, longtime friend Linda Wharton-Boyd suggested dedicating a month to the effort of minority mental health to provide education and support among the individuals of BIPOC communities.

As part of the effort, Campbell and Wharton-Boyd worked together to outline the concept of National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month and what it would entail. She started to educate and encourage individuals in the community to receive mental health checkups. Campbell worked tirelessly to provide multicultural and multilingual mental health education and resources to the BIPOC community until she passed away in 2006.

“Once my loved one accepted the diagnosis, healing began for the entire family, but it took too long. It took years. Can’t we, as a nation, begin to speed up that process? We need a national campaign to destigmatize mental illness, especially one targeted toward African Americans. The message must go on billboards and in radio and TV public service announcements. It must be preached from pulpits and discussed in community forums. It’s not shameful to have a mental illness. Get treatment. Recovery is possible.” – Bebe Moore Campbell

Bebe Moore Campbell inspired this movement to erase mental health stigma and create support between mental health and diagnosis in BIPOC communities.

Why is National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month Important

By observing National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month, we help destigmatize mental health issues by fighting misinformation so those in the BIPOC community who struggle don't feel left out and seek out mental health care treatment.

According to a survey completed by the American Psychiatric Association (APA), there are mental health disparities among diverse populations, and people from racial/ethnic minority groups are less likely to receive mental health care. The survey showed that some of the critical issues multicultural and multilingual communities face include the following:

- Less access to treatment, diversity among mental health providers, or distrust in the treatment plan
- Less likely to receive treatment
- Poorer quality of care
- Higher levels of mental illness stigma
- Culturally insensitive health care system
- Racism, bias, homophobia, or discrimination in treatment settings
- Cultural and language barriers

Lower rates or lack of health insurance

These critical issues have multiple negative consequences affecting mental health in BIPOC individuals in the long term. According to the APA, these negative consequences include underdiagnosis or misdiagnosis of mental illness that leads individuals to discontinue mental health care treatment. Some do not even receive treatment. The APA survey indicated that racial/ethnic minority youth with behavioral health issues are turned to the juvenile justice system rather than specialty primary care. According to Underwood and Washington, "approximately 50% to 75% of youth in the juvenile justice system meet criteria for a mental health disorder."

This is why it is important to educate and create awareness during National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month to help reduce prejudice, stigma, and unfair inequities in BIPOC communities.

How to Observe National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month

You can observe National Minority Mental Health Awareness Month by promoting mental health equity, helping and encouraging someone who needs mental health care, donating and volunteering with programs or organizations, and being kind to others.

EASY BAKED FISH FILLETS

— MAIN DISH —

Ingredients:

1½ pounds tilapia (fresh, or frozen and thawed)

Cooking spray

1 tablespoon fresh lime juice

1 tablespoon light mayonnaise

⅛ teaspoon onion powder

⅛ teaspoon black pepper

½ cup fresh breadcrumbs

1½ tablespoons butter, melted,
or olive oil

2 tablespoons chopped
fresh parsley

Directions

1. Preheat oven to 425° F.
2. Place fish in an 11 x 7-inch baking dish coated with cooking spray.
3. Combine lime juice, mayonnaise, onion powder, and pepper in a small bowl, and spread over fish.
4. Sprinkle with breadcrumbs; drizzle with butter or olive oil. Bake at 425° for 15-20 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork.
5. Sprinkle with parsley. Serve with a leafy green salad and your favorite vegetable.

Yield:
4 servings

Total Cost:
$7.14

Cost per Serving:
$1.78

Variations/Tips: Use any firm white fish: cod, haddock, or grouper also work well. Substitute lemon juice for the lime juice. Instead of regular breadcrumbs use whole wheat breadcrumbs.
