SEPTEMBER IS BLOOD CANCER AWARENESS MONTH!

 FOUR TYPES OF BLOOD CANCER:

1. Leukemia:

A cancer of the white blood cells, characterized by abnormal production of immature or dysfunctional white blood cells. There are two main types:

Acute lymphocytic leukemia (ALL)

Acute myeloid leukemia (AML)

2. Lymphoma:

A cancer of the lymph nodes, which are part of the immune system. There are two main types:

Hodgkin lymphoma

Non-Hodgkin lymphoma

3. Myeloma:

A cancer of the plasma cells, which are white blood cells that produce antibodies. There is one main type:

Multiple myeloma

4. Myeloproliferative neoplasms (MPNs):

A group of disorders that cause the bone marrow to produce too many of a specific type of blood cell. There are several types, including:

Chronic myeloid leukemia (CML)

Essential thrombocythemia

Polycythemia vera

In 2025, progress is being made in understanding and treating blood cancers, with new research showing that low blood cell counts (cytopenia) drive progression in blood cancers in patients with clonal hematopoiesis of indeterminant potential (CHIP). Researchers are also developing less invasive blood tests for monitoring treatment and progression and focusing on intercepting blood cancers before they become symptomatic. Despite declining overall cancer mortality rates, leukemia incidence is increasing, and early and aggressive treatment through clinical trials is encouraged to access new therapies and improve outcomes.

Key Developments in Blood Cancer Research (2025)

CHIP and Cytopenia:

A 2025 study found that patients with the age-related blood disorder CHIP have a significantly higher risk of developing blood cancer if they also develop cytopenia (low blood cell counts).

Blood-Based Monitoring:

New blood tests, like the Blood Flow test, can detect residual cancer cells (PRD) in the blood after treatment for multiple myeloma, even when bone marrow tests show no disease, identifying patients at high risk of relapse.

Risk Stratification for MGUS:

Revised free light chain (FLC) reference intervals are helping to better stratify the risk of progression from monoclonal gammopathy of undetermined significance (MGUS) to multiple myeloma, reclassifying many high-risk patients as low-risk.

Interception and Early Detection:

A 2025 workshop focused on intercepting blood cancers, aiming to detect and treat the disease before symptoms even appear by using early detection and risk stratification methods.

Treatment & Clinical Trials:Clinical Trials are Key:

Participation in clinical trials is encouraged to access the most modern blood cancer treatments and improve outcomes, rather than viewing trials as a last resort.

Breakthrough Therapies:

Clinical trials have led to breakthrough therapies that help patients live longer, improve quality of life, and increase progression-free survival.

Incidence & Trends:

Increasing Leukemia Cases: The incidence of leukemia is on the rise in the United States.

Blood Cancers in the US: The American Cancer Society estimates over 192,000 new cases of blood cancer in the US in 2025, including leukemia, lymphoma, and myeloma.

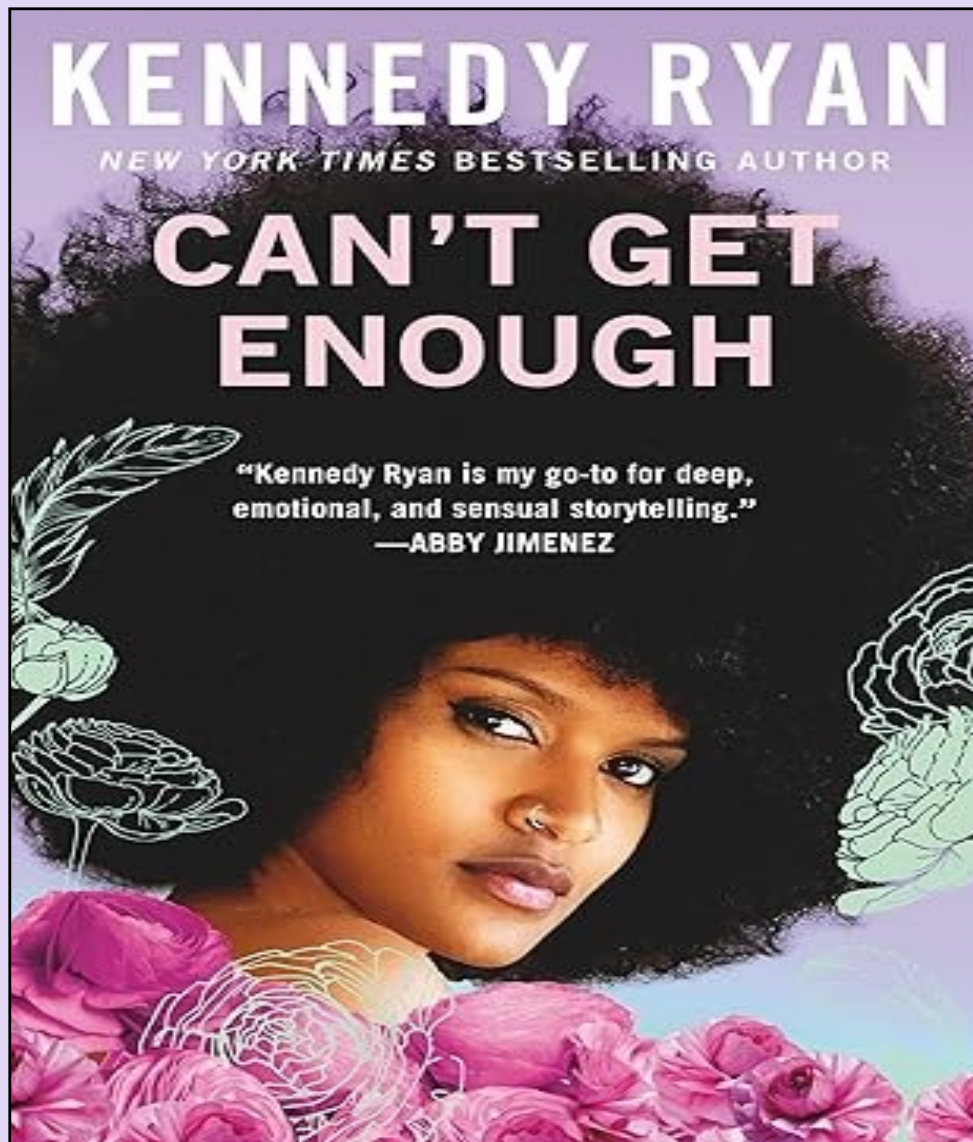

What You Should Know:

Seek Early Intervention: Listen to your clinician about your specific prognosis.

Participate in Trials: Consider participating in clinical trials early in your treatment journey to access the latest therapies.

Know the Symptoms:

Be aware of symptoms like unusual tiredness or breathlessness, which can signal anemia caused by leukemias suppressing normal blood formation.

"Can't Get Enough balances brutal emotion, whip-smart humor, and delicious spice. Moving, romantic, and thrumming with life, this is Ryan's best work yet."

—Talia Hibbert

Hendrix Barry lives a fabulous life. She has phenomenal friends, a loving family, and a thriving business that places her in the entertainment industry's rarefied air.

Your vision board? She's probably living it.

She's a woman with goals, dreams, ambitions—always striving upward. And in the midst of everything, she's facing her toughest challenge yet: caring for an aging parent. Who has time for romance? From her experience, there's a low ROI on relationships. Anyway, she hasn't met the man who can keep up with her. Until...him.
