

KASE'S KOLUMN

SEPTEMBER NEWSLETTER

HI HI HIII

how i love September! September, October, November, and December are my FAVORITE months of the year! so I am very excited to spend them in Honduras! but also a little sad because I love the cold... and if you know anything about Honduras it is the opposite of cold! but thats all right! September was a great month and I'm eager to get into it so lets go!

LANGUAGE SCHOOL

so if you remember my last I talked about our first 3 weeks of language school...well now we are offically done with our last 3 weeks!!! I HAVE OFFICIALLY GRADUATED LANGUAGE SCHOOL! I am so incredibly proud of my team and I and I cannot wait to continue to mess up and learn and just continue in our spanish! if you want a little bit more detail you can read my last newsletter! but I was planning on having different teachers like how I did the first time around but our first week back I had a teacher that I LOVED so I requested to have her again because i just really loved our relationship!

LANGUAGE SCHOOL PT. 2

so i ended up having my teacher Ana mercedes and I miss her so much already :( but I know that I will always have a friend in her! the majority of my time at school was spent talking. about everything a girl could talk about! I think it was really good for me to talk so much because I am not always confident in my spanish and I know that just talking all day every day with her was a really big help with my thought process and with my vocabulary.

i dont think there was a single day that I spent with ana where i walked away from school being upset or confused about a certain topic we discussed! and I definetly felt that way in the first go around haha! but ana and I always were laughing and having a good time! lots of inside jokes were made and lots of laughs were heard throughout the entire school! overall school this round wasnt bad! I was excited to be done BUT had a blast while doing it we will now go back in time to the beginning of September! before we left for language school we were still going to the schools and being involved with radical! and in all of Honduras there is a special day that is specifically there to celebrate the kids! día del niño translates to day of the kid! so radical wanted to do something special for them and do something they wouldn't normally do! so we came up with a theme to of a carnival! and our skit was carnival themed and our games were too! and we even wore costumes to tie it all together! it was a lot a lotttt of work but I think the kids felt loved and it was something that made us happy to see them happy! I was a tightrope walker! which is so ironic because i probably have the worst balance on the face of the planet!!!

DÍA DEL NIÑO

NEWS NEWS NEWS

so if any of you are following me on social media you will already be aware of this big news but our team is growing faster than we thought! we have a new member Michaela! she was on the brazil team but due to some situation with visas theyre whole team was not able to make it. BUT that means we get the honor to have her join in our team and the ministries here in Corquin!

BYE YALL

well guys I think this concludes my newsletter! I love making newsletters and updating my amazing supporters! as always if you ever have questions or just want to catch up I am always available for you guys! I did have a number change so if you would want my Honduran number I can give yall that too! I am so thankful for you guys and I am prayerful that you all are doing well! love you all immensely!

PRAYERS

I have a couple prayer requests if I may! first being, soemthing else that happened this month was that mike and kris, our coordinators, went to the states to do a field presentation for the new class of aimers and I think some were interested! so I ask that you all pray for the possibility of more aimers in corquin! secondly, our transition as a team with Michaela and when the new aimers come too! and lastly just for my heart for the perserverance and strength of God to continue strong and never let the enemy take me down! again I am so thankful for you all!!!! feliz día!
