OCTOBER NEWSLETTER

my class

unfortunately last month radical lost two of their members. in honduras the school year looks very different from what we would normally think. they go to school from february to november. so since the school year was almost over there wasn't enough time to get new radical teachers, so whats the next best thing?! AIMERS! so i was privileged to be asked if i would teach a few classes during the month of october! i had 4 classes in total with helping a few along the way. i had different ages ranging from 1st to 7th grade! one of my teammates max also got to join me and help alongside me while working on his spanish! i absolutely love being able to teach and get involved with the cutest kids ever! i am looking forward to hopefully being able to teach more next year and continue to build my relationship with the kids!

hi everyone! i cannot believe that october is over! how crazy! it was a lot a lot of fun and a lot happened so lets just hop right in to the beautiful month of october!!!

radical/class

normally in radical their classes consist of a short little revision of the story we acted, then talking about how the moral is applied in the story. for example one week we did the story of ruth and naomi and the moral was perseverance and how through it all ruth stayed persistent. then we go on to explain what it means and play some games and activities to really get it to stick! its super fun being able to show them a moral and how they can apply that to their lives. we spend the morning time engaging and teaching the kids and in the afternoons we prep for the following days and next moral.

a new thing that i signed up to do was teaching bible class in the church at corquin! for the whole month of october every sunday i was able to teach classes for the kids during the lesson time. the amount of kids ranged from 1 to 7 kids! i am thankful that i got to build more of a connection with the church kids too! my first time i was a little nervous but it was super encouraging by the end! kenna also came with me and helped manage the kids when they would get rowdy! we usually begin with prayer and a short story then we talk about it and play a game! after that i ask them to recite our weekly memory verses to get a treat! they seemed to really enjoy it! and i did too! i hope to do it again in the new year!

at one of my favorite schools there is the cutest little boy named pablo. he always seemed drawn to me and would run and scream my name when we first would show up! i saw this as an opportunity to invite him to church to come to my bible class! he gave me his moms number since hes only about 8 years old. and surprise surprise he showed up at my front door that very next sunday! and he wasn't alone! his cute sister lupita joined him! pablo has come every week since and always seemed to love it! please be playing for courage i as i try to reach out to his family as well! im so glad i got this opportunity to reach out to him!

a few extra random things:

- one of the radical members, kenia, was baptized!
- we have weekly ladies events and we usually have fun little activities to get the ladies out of their shells!
- we got to celebrate two birthdays this month and we went to our absolute favorite tacos place!
- we also had our last week teaching at the schools. we were SPOILED by those schools! cake almost everyday, getting fed full meals at several schools sometimes in one day, having parties, being honored, getting gifts, and so much more. these schools LOVE radical and it is so amazing to see the impact we have on them and show them how to live morally. it was so awesome.
- lastly, we started a young adult group! its really cool because this group is sort of like our teams baby! we have have it every monday at our house and we have games and a discussion time and a time for singing! and snacks of course! but its so encouraging to see people bringing friends and having old members that haven't been to church in awhile come and join our group!

to conclude i just wanted to express how thankful i am for the work the God is doing in corquin. the radical program is so amazing and its so cool to see the fact that people are wanting radical in their schools to teach these kids about how to live christ centered lives. these are things everyone needs to know and at times the circumstances that they live in they are not being taught how to live correctly. i love radical and i see the impact they have on the town and on me! i am so honored to have the opportunities that i had this month and all of that would be impossible without God. thank you guys for always listening and caring about our ministries! as always if you have questions you can always email me back or find me on social media! i love you all! thank you again!
