BABIES

PRAY with Friends

Invite a friend over for a play date or take your baby to the park or library where other babies and families will be. Encourage your baby to look at and interact with other babies. Tell your baby that Jonathan and David were friends (see reverse side). Mention that we can choose to love and become friends. Thank God for the friends in your life and in your baby's life.

VERSE

Do all things
in love.
(1 Corinthians
16:14)

MAKE a Belt

Cut strips of paper and make a short paper chain connecting the strips to each other with tape. Use the chain to make a "belt" by wrapping it around your child's waist and securing with a small binder clip.

Remind your child that in the Bible story, Jonathan and David were friends (reverse side). State that Jonathan gave David a coat and belt as gifts. Say the Weekly Verse: "God loves us, so we should love others. 1 John 4:11."

David, Nabal, and Abigail

1 SAMUEL 25:1-35

A rich but evil man named Nabal was married to a wise and beautiful woman named Abigail. Nabal was overseeing the shearing of his sheep in Carmel, not far from David and the men who were with him.

David instructed his men to find Nabal and remind him of the kindness David and his men showed. David also told his men to ask Nabal to give whatever he could to help them.

David's men greeted Nabal, but he was unkind. He said he did not know David and asked why he should give to a man he did not know.

When David's men returned and reported what Nabal said, David ordered them to put on their swords. About 400 men went with him, ready to attack Nabal and his men.

One of Nabal's workers warned Abigail about her husband's actions. "David sent messengers to our master, but he was rude to them," he said. "David's men never did us harm while we were in the field. Please think about what to do. There will be trouble because our master will not listen to anyone!"

Abigail acted quickly. She gathered bread, grain, and fruit and loaded them on donkeys. Without talking to Nabal, she and her servants left to meet David.

Meanwhile, David's anger grew, and he told his men, "I guarded what belonged to Nabal for nothing. He paid me back with evil."

Abigail jumped off her donkey and fell facedown in front of David. She begged David to listen to her. She told David how foolish her husband had been, but she had brought many gifts for David and his men. She said, "God has kept you from seeking revenge and shedding blood. Please take the gifts I have brought. Share with your men. When you become king, you will have no regrets or guilt of revenge."

David praised God for sending Abigail, who kept him from harming Nabal and his men. He accepted Abigail's gifts and sent her home in peace.
