

God's Wisdom for All Our Relationships

You'll often hear people say that God created us for community, but doing life together isn't always easy. Thankfully, the New Testament offers many "one-another" passages that give practical (often challenging) instructions on how God intends us to live with each other. There are things we are taught to do, and things we are taught not to do.

The one-anothers help us know how to love, encourage, and care for others so God can be glorified in our relationships and in our church. As we look at a range of relationships through our sermon series, Together, this reading plan will help us dig into the biblical wisdom needed to live and love like Jesus alongside others.

Reflection Questions

DAILY What did this passage or verse teach me about how to love and care for others? Am I being challenged to change something? What is God inviting me to, based on this passage?

WEEKLY What is my takeaway from this week's readings? Which one stood out most? What does God keep bringing to mind? What will I take with me into my relationships from what I read this week?

Don't worry if you fall behind! Continuing to read is more important than keeping the schedule.
