

This week in When Death Died, we turn to 1 Corinthians 15:12–19, where Paul confronts one of the most important questions of our faith: If Christ has not been raised, what hope do we have? In this powerful passage, we are reminded that the resurrection is not a symbolic idea but the very foundation of our confidence and future hope. As Pastor Alf continues this series, we'll explore how the truth of Christ's resurrection speaks directly to our questions about death and what lies beyond, assuring us that God is still at work bringing life, wholeness, and redemption.
