BAPTIST CHURCH

The Christian church can be its own worst enemy.

Human beings are being left behind, tossed aside and wounded by the very people who are called to welcome them and love them.

And it is happening a lot.

There are many people who have left church because they asked 'too many' questions, because they were the wrong gender to teach Sunday School, or because their politics didn't fit.

And the perception is that it is Christianity itself that is narrow, judgmental and only selectively welcoming.

But this is untrue.

How do I know this? Because Northside Drive Baptist Church is different. Northside Drive, as you well know, is a 'deep end' church, a big tent, a y'all come, kind of church. No question is outlawed. No theological inquiry is off limits. No one is sidelined or marginalized.

Friends, this is why we have invited Sarah McCammon to speak to us- and the community. Ours is a church where exvangelicals are welcome. Ours is a church where folks in various stages of deconstruction are embraced.

Hurt by another church? Come here and heal.
Don't fit the theological mold? Come here and explore.
Been told you are not welcome? Come here and be known and loved.

I hope that you will join us on Sunday to hear Sarah. I hope that you will read her book. I hope that you will lend your hand to continuing the hopeful, healing ministry of Northside Drive Baptist Church.

Join us this Sunday, November 9, at 4:00 PM in our Chapel! Register at northsidedrive.org.

Lunch and Learn

Marc and Kim Wyatt joined us this past Sunday to share about their ministry with refugees and immigrants. The Wyatts have been CBF field personnel for many years, serving in Thailand, Canada and currently in the Raleigh-Durham area of North Carolina. Marc and Kim presented us with case studies of recent experiences in the changing landscape of immigration. They shared about the Welcome House ministry that is up to 50 locations throughout the southeast. And they brought their passion about loving the least, the foreigner and the outsider in a particularly challenging time. For more information, visit www.welcomehouseraleigh.org.

Mission Update and Opportunity

From Jeremy Lewis at Urban Recipe:

"You are likely inundated with news, or personally know someone impacted by the freeze now.

Please know we are working hard with our partners, in our communities, with our donors, and with our food co-op members to ensure food is reaching as many people as possible right now.

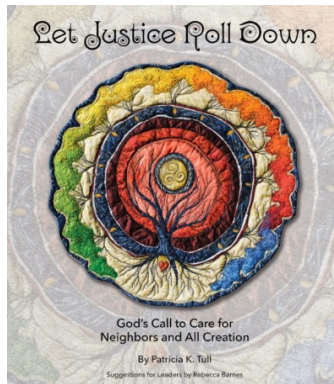

In times like these, we are so grateful for the food co-op model. Amidst loss of food stamps and income, our co-op members have been able to consistently receive food from co-ops all year, including this last tumultuous month. This month, we have begun increasing the food going out to co-ops, and our members have responded by giving any surplus they have to their neighbors who are in need.

As an organization, we are focused on sustained, deep support for families through co-ops, but are quickly adjusting to add in additional emergency food distributions through our Mobile Pantry this month. This week, we have increased the number of boxes going out to our partners, added in 3 additional Mobile Pantry distributions, and are working with partners to set up more emergency distributions next week. “

Thanks to the generous response of the NDBC congregation during the Souper Bowl this past February, the Missions Ministry Team is sending a check to provide additional support to Urban Recipe, as well as delivering staples on Friday for immediate distribution.

If you want to contribute directly to Urban Recipe, you may donate through urbanrecipe.org/donate; by mailing a check to 970 Jefferson St. NW, Suite 7, Atlanta, GA 30318; or by writing a check to NDBC with Urban Recipe on the memo line.
