April 2026 - The Letters of Paul

The Pauline epistles, or letters of Paul, are the New Testament books written to churches or individuals after the resurrection of Jesus and during the Apostle Paul's ministry. Paul's letters to the churches, in particular, give much needed encouragement, direction, and hope as well as healthy measures for church discipline. Paul's letters to individuals were written to those whom he personally discipled and saw as his spiritual children in the faith. He instructs them on leadership, doctrine, overseeing the church, and living out and passing on the faith. Inspired by the Holy Spirit, Paul famously writes on our resurrection hope, the fruit of the Spirit, salvation by grace through faith, and the supremacy of Jesus Christ. This same Jesus, our Savior and Lord, is also the Creator and Sustainer of all things and will one day return in glorious fashion for His people.
